Psychologist in Red Bluff

Having practiced in San Francisco for 25 years and wanting finally to begin a family, “Dr. Joe” Busey and his wife moved to Red Bluff in 1991.

He took his Ph.D. in Psychology at UNC-Chapel Hill and was a CPT in the Army at Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco from 1966-1971, where he became Assistant Chief of Psychology.

After the Army, he was a staff member at the prestigious Family Therapy Institute of Marin and then co-founded a family therapy training institute in San Rafael.

He was the first Dean of Faculty at the California School of Professional Psychology in San Francisco and was in private practice in S.F. from 1970-1995.

He has established his general practice in Red Bluff. “Dr. Joe” is one of the very few Board Certified psychologists in a rural area in California. He is a member of the Community Baptist Church, a “basso profundo” in the Red Bluff Masterworks Chorale, a columnist for the Tehama Trader Plus (Ask Dr. Joe), and a radio talk-show host with national and local authors and thinkers on KBLF AM 1490. “Conversations from Rural America” airs every Saturday morning at 7:30.

Dr. Joe with his 5 ¾ year old son Luke

His web site www.drjoe.com, covers his practice, his columns, his radio show, and other areas, too.

He makes himself quickly available to fellow professionals who have problems with themselves, their families, or their offices.
